Elections not over yet, but the triumph of the Whigs is already secured, and the results already known show that they will have an effective majority in the new Parliament. It is probable that the returns still to be received will further increase the Liberal majority.

CHILIAN ESTANCIAS.

Mr Richard Newton, the well-known estanciero of Chascomus, who recently made a trip to Chile, has published in the 'Rural Magazine' a most interesting chapter describing the two most celebrated Chilian estancias, called La Compania and San Nicolas, which will possess much interest for a very large portion of our readers, who, although engaged in the estancia business in the Plate, know very little about its method or its rules on the other side of the Andes.

In Chile they call a 'hacienda' every piece of land that is wholly or partially cultivated, being of a greater extent than thirty square squares, and on every hacienda there is an edifice answering to our description of a estancia house, called Las Casas. It serves for the dwelling of the owners, the mayordomo, and deposits for the crops and farming implements. Properties of smaller dimensions than thirty squares are called chacras or hijuelas; and, generally speaking, these are under a much higher cultivation than the haciendas, being chiefly in the environs of the cities and supplying them with vegetables and flowers. The chacras around Santiago represent a great value.

One of the most valuable estancias in all Chile is the Compania, a few leagues to the south of Santiago; its estimated value is 3,000,000 gold dollars and its yield or revenue 90,000 gold dollars per annum; its extent is 11,000 sq. squares on the plain and 93,000 squares in the mountains, nearly all covered with pasturage. It extends from the division line of the Andes to the cordon of the mountains Alhue, taking in nearly half the valley. The western point is called the Rinconada, consisting of level camps, considered to be the best in Chile. The manager of this part of the property devotes his attention to sowing wheat, which it produces abundantly and of the very best quality; and so rich is the land that the crops are never exausted and it never wants manure; but they allow it to rest one year in three. There are great alfalfares to fatten the cattle and horses, but live stock is not so much attended to in this part of the hacienda.

The eastern part of the hacienda extends from the Camino Real of the South to the Andes, and is covered with grain crops presenting a most picturesque aspect; and in the little valleys and breaks wheat, barley, maize, alfalfa and every description of fruit trees grow luxuriantly. The second part of the hacienda, comprising the hills and mountains, is under live stock, 25 to 30,000 head of cattle; there are also some flocks of sheep and some manadas, but as a rule the live stock on this estancia and rearing of stock does not give the same yield as the growing of wheat and fattening of animals.

As it is impossible for one proprietor to cultivate such an immense extent of country, various portions of it are rented out to farmers, and thus it is that the wheat crop of the Compania is the largest in the Chilian Republic.

The roads in every part of the country are good, and freights very cheap, which is a great help for the farmers: and the rains in the winter are very abundant; besides this, the hacienda is watered by a grand canal which is subdivided into smaller ones supplied by the River Cachopool, and there are excellent springs in all the valleys; and owing to the great cultivation going on in this hacienda, and the partial renting of the lands for the growing of the crops, small towns have arisen outside the property. The town of Codegue is composed entirely of the farmers of this estate, and the commerce of the town is of some importance.

The Hacienda de la Compania formerly belonged to the Jesuits and possessed the largest hacienda in the country; when Chales III. expelled the Jesuits, he confiscated their property, which was sold to Don Mateo Toro Zambruno, one of the then richest capitalists, for 90,000 gold dollars, and it has passed by inheritance to the Señora Doña N. Toro de Corea. The Jesuits in their time cultivated wheat and raised cattle, but the difficulties of transport greatly checked the business; they built large deposits at short distances on the southern road, and which are useful to this day; but the road is now almost shut up owing to the opening of the Southern Railway.

The Estancia de San Nicolas, not so much for its extent as for its excellent management and cultivation, may be considered the second in Chile; it is in the Province of Maule, and belongs to a Valparaiso merchant, Mr. A. Schultz, who has made it a model hacienda, working it on the most skilled plans of Europe and North America. Its area is a thousand squares, divided into sixteen potreros by tall poplars and wire fences. The land is of the richest, watered by a canal that comes from the Rio Longave and spreads out into two hundred acequias. The produce of this estancia is exported from Maule; it contains 80,000 vine plants, which give 2,000 ar. of 'demosto,' and 170,000 plants of French vine, which cover an extent of sixty squares; it has also large plantations of quinces for the manufacture of aguardiente, 30,000 plants of mulberry and large plantations of every description of fruit trees; thousands of acacias, oaks and eucalyptus; the crops are sown in April and the harvest comes in January, usually from 12 to 15 per cent. The live stock on this property consists of 1000 sheep, mestizo Rambouillet, whose wool goes to the cloth factory of Tomé; fine milch cows, with Durham bulls imported from England; horses of various breeds, and also pigs. The land, before being sowed, is three times ploughed, and manured; the seed is also well cleaned, washed with sulphate of copper and salt, sown by machinery and covered with two or three inches of earth. The crops are got in before they are too ripe, and not left exposed to the weather in the fields: the granaries and deposits are kept very clean and are well ventilated. Besides the manufactory of wines and liqueurs there is an immense dairy where cheese, in imitation of Swiss, and butter of good quality is made. Every agricultural implement of machinery is to be found on this model farm, from Ransom and Sims' steam engines, that plough three squares daily, and also work a saw mill and threshing machine, to Samuelson's reaping machines, Walter A. Wood's machines for cutting alfalfa, Beamish's sowing machines, over a hundred American ploughs, Ransom and Sims' harrows, and various machines for cleaning grain, grinding barley and making pearl barley. There is also a profusion of machinery for the dairy and the manufacture of wine and aguardiente, industries that are planted on this estate on the best system. The dwelling-houses, 'bodegas,' workshops, stables, outhouses, are all of the first order, and superior to any other I have seen in Chile."

The reading of the foregoing particulars of the working of estancias in Chile will show River Plate estancieros and sheepfarmers what a very wide difference exists between estancias in the River Plate and Chilian haciendas. To put the matter in a nutshell: a River Plate estancia that represents a capital, not of 3,000,000 gold dollars, but of half a million of gold dollars, gives to the estanciero a minimum annual yield of 100,000 gold dollars, which is greater than what Mr. Newton tells us the Compania estate in Chile, valued at 3,000,000 gold dollars, gives to its owner, under the most improved management, hardest labour and very best crops.

THE SAINT CLOUD FETES.

The French philanthropic society has achieved a great success in the Saint Cloud Fetes. A Frenchman may be proud of the results that have crowned the efforts of that society. Since the day of the inauguration the attendance daily increased, and the Frenchmen gaily sauntered through the fête, surrounded on all sides with familiar faces and fond reminiscences from the Boulevard des Italiens or the Palais de Saint Cloud, now a ruin of the Napoleonic regime. This fraternal fête produced the first Sunday $110,000, and on a subsequent day $180,000. Monday was the gayest day, and it was a pleasure to see men, young and old and of all classes, fraternise in this charitable feast.

The stalls were the centre of attraction: in every nook shone the bright eyes of French beauties. The ladies, with inimitable grace and tact, favoured with the same charming 'accueil' the humble labourer and the opulent gentleman. Graces of fourteen and fifteen years flitted about the garden and caught the unwary and made a splendid business; they all wore the French colours. Madame Belloni, the well-known actress, went all round the gardens selling photographs of M. Thiers.

A remarkable instance of courtesy, revealing the innate politeness of the French, took place when the La France Club withdrew. As they emerged into the street, ten marines from the war-vessel Tactique drew up immediately, although there was no officer in command. Some of our countrymen who attended the feast were charmed, and left their hearts behind them; they were the object of special attention, and the young ladies pinned to their button-holes a choice bouquet, a narcissus, or a tri-color.

The Committee deserve the highest praise; their efforts were unceasing, and in spite of a protracted fasting from 8a.m. to 11p.m. they imparted to the attendance the remaining lively spirits that animated them. One more delicate than the rest, however, succumbed, and had to appease the crying wants of hunger; he bought a 'pain d'epice,' a kind of punch cake, and cannibal-like eat it. Many gentlemen who had formed part of the old Committee, and had certain griefs against the new one, patriotically overcame private questions and attended, thus greatly contributing to the success of the feast; many of these gentlemen presented to the Committee valuable articles for sale. Mr. Daumas has been the sole head and heart of the Saint Cloud Fetes, and Mr. Alfredo Norsaline, a second Proteus, seemed to be everywhere at the same time. The popular song 'Du Youant du Merliton' was heard all around, ladies, gentlemen and children all joining in.

All around we met familiar faces, faces one sees in the busy walks of life, in our social saloons, all assembled for the same charitable purpose. The success of the fêtes is greatly due to the attendance of the fair sex who, as we all know, since the days of Adam and Eve are essentially philanthropic.

The Frenchmen in Buenos Ayres are in a great part Republicans, and though there are many who differed in politics and religion and lately created a serious discussion which found its way into the columns of the newspapers, charity, an essentially French virtue, brought them all together. The French in B. Ayres are following in the steps of the Parisians, who have astonished the world with their Murcian sympathies.

Every Frenchman in town attended the feast, and, though thousands of miles away from the scenes which the name of this feast recalls organised such a gathering as would only be seen in the merry skirts of Paris, at Llores, Anteuil, or the very Buttes of Montmartre.

The following shows the receipts at this remarkable Fair:—

THE MERCEDES RACES.

The Epsom of the River Plate never looked livelier than on Monday and Tuesday last, on the occasion of the Autumn Meeting. The attendance was the largest ever seen on the course, the fair sex mustering in unusual numbers, owing to the wise and gallant proceeding of the Committee in throwing the Grand Stand open free to ladies. The Hiberno-Argentine element predominated, and very fair it looked. The specials from town disgorged a large number of visitors, but those from the country were equally numerous, and the hotels had a busy and profitable two days of it, although on the second day there was a decided falling off in the attendance. The weather was simply delightful, although a trifle too hot on the second day. H.M. Charge d'Affaires, Mr. Egerton, was present, and gave the Committee valuable assistance in deciding on the ages of the colts and fillies. We gave in yesterday's issue the result of Monday's events, and those on Tuesday will be found at foot. The Strangers' Race on the second day was most exciting. The Ring shouted themselves hoarse trying to place 2 to 1 on Flojo for first place, and fully $100,000 m/c was offered at this price, but, luckily for the backers, it was not all taken. The winner, Tiro Nacional, started at 10 to 1 against him, and his backers landed a 'pot,' both from the Ring and Le Sport. On the whole, old Mercedes has not yet witnessed two more successful or agreeable racing days than Monday and Tuesday last.

Infelix and Tiro National took the lead, waited on by Flojo. After two squares Tiro ran clean away and was never collared. The winner was ridden beautifully by Mr. W Latham.

OUR PARIS LETTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The discussion on the commercial tariffs drags its slow length along: each speaker defends some particular interest, none rise to the height of great argument. The amnesty has proved as tedious as a twice told tale: but Dr. Clemenceau not the less is determined to convert it into political capital. Opinion continues to be sick of the whole matter. The Superior Council of Education Bill has been voted by the Senate; thanks to the ability of the Minister of Public Instruction, the education of France will henceforth be directed by practical men, interested only in secular work. A deputy named Seignobes had a private spite against a legal functionary at Nimes, M. Clappier, and when the latter was revoked for his hostility to the Republic, the deputy telegraphed the fact to him, and claimed to have been the means of bringing it about. He had to affirm in the Chamber he telegraphed a lie, but his 'mea culpa' can only be completed by his resignation.

The heavy, though warm rain, is rapidly extirpating any relics of the terrible winter: last Sunday the owners of villa residences in the suburbs made a pilgrimage to their properties and returned with faces as long as Lent, on beholding their ornamental trees killed, and evergreens as dry as the remaining biscuit after a voyage. In the public gardens of the city the devastation is complete. The Bois de Boulogne was as crowded as in the merry month of May, and the opening day of the steeple chase had quite a procession of drags.

Patti has won back all her admirers by her performance in Traviata: she has in a measure resuscitated the halcyon days of the Italiens. The most difficult matter she had to contend against was the almost impossibility on the part of the audience to keep from laughing in presence of the wretched troupe that supported her. In the first act, despite some real emotion, the prima-donna executed the brindisi and the duet brilliantly: in the second act she showed what immense progress she had made in the matter of scenic qualities; the third act has but little for Violetta, but in the last, her seductions were irresistible: she expressed her plaints on quitting life in the most poignant manner, and the last efforts of love of the dying courtesan moved as usual the audience to tears; for vice, like virtue, it seems can claim the tribute of a tear. She and Nicolini are much sought after for private concerts. Patti, it appears, is a great eater: it is the 'mode' at present for ladies: in the morning she never speaks a word till having drank her cup of perfumed chocolate: then she 'exercises' her voice, by calling her maid Carla, in a tone that shakes the windows; this explains why she prefers having a villa to herself, and that she now has here. On a day she has to sing, she never dines; only takes a cup of soup before leaving for the theatre, but makes up by a robust supper. Her dinner commences with a garlic soup, and then as much underdone meat and a deluge of gravy as can be patronized: claret and soda water constitute her chief beverage.

Another musical celebrity within our walls is Giuseppe Verdi, who superintends the rehearsal of Aida in person at the Opera. He stops in the same hotel and must ever have the same rooms: he is accompanied by his wife, who never leaves him: he looks very old, like a diplomatist or politician, anything but a musician: his tenants call him the professore, and serenade him during fine nights with selections from his own compositions. Verdi has produced a prodigious number of scores: no less than 20 when he was only thirty years of age; he would give the eyes of his head nearly, to be able to write an opera-comique. Verdi has displayed no less than three styles; the first in the Lombardi, the second in Rigoletto and third in Aida—all these we soon shall be able to compare. He has purchased the property, Busetto, where he was born, an inn-keeper's son, and he has the planks of rough wood which he converted into violins to compose marches. What a commencement, when compared with Meyerbeer's, born in the palace of a financier.

Crime is rather looking up again in the capital: three cases of savage assault in full day in the course of a week is not bad: the victims were an old English gentleman (Pearson) and two lovely women, shop-keepers. Two medical students returning from dinner and singing as they went, accosted a man carrying a bundle on his shoulder: 'follow us to the police station,' they whispered in his ear: the fellow threw down the bundle and fled—it was cloth that he had stolen. A footman named Louis has died in Paris: he left no less than three disconsolate widows to mourn him, all claiming a share in his goods: he gave each woman to believe the other was only his mistress.

The penitentiary of Uster, in the canton of Zurich, is a model in its way; it is kept by a dram shop proprietor, who allows his inmates to say and do as they please, and furnishes them with letter paper on which is engraved a splendid panoramic view of the locality and his establishement. If only all the rogues would migrate to this Eden.

Since Alexandre Dumas, fils, has published an attack on his Fathers in his book on Divorce, he has been outlawed by monarchical society: he is thus in self-defence compelled to become republican.

A SCENE IN THE COMMONS.

'THIS PERSON,' GRISSELL, AT THE BAR

Not the slightest difficulty was experienced in 'making a House' today, for the Commons assembled in force at noon with an eager desire to see Mr Grissell, and when that offender did put in appearance there were at least a hundred members in their places on each side of the House, Ministerialists being more numerous than Liberals, Radicals, and Home Rulers combined. Lord Hartington was not present, but Mr Forster, who has in this matter acted on behalf of the Opposition leaders, was supported on the front bench by Sir H. James and Mr. Campbell-Bannerman. Several subordinate officials occupied the Treasury bench, but no Cabinet Minister was visible until at the last moment the Chancellor of the Exchequer hurried into the House.

The Sergeant-at-Arms, being ordered to bring in his prisoner, solemnly approached the table, and, taking possession of the mace, marched off, amidst some encouraging cheers from below the gangways, with that awful emblem of power to the lobby, in search of the offender. Mr Grissell, being discovered close at hand, was brought in, and the actual material bar having been drawn across the floor, the Sergeant, still bearing the mace, took up a position beside his prisoner. Mr Grissell was found to be a slight personage of fair complexion, not more than forty years of age, but prematurely bald. He seemed to be suffering from extreme nervousness, and he was by no means soothed by the severe tones in which the Speaker, seated in his chair, recapitulated the heads of his misconduct, while the House maintained a stern and ominous silence. Mr Grissell, whom the Speaker called 'the prisoner,' but who was mentioned by others as 'this person,' being called upon for an explanation, essayed in a tremulous voice to make his defence. A paper which he carried in his trembling hands shook so violently that he could not read the notes he had written upon it, and after one or two references to it, which only tended to increase his confusion, he put the document aside. With occasional pauses and a somewhat impeded utterance, Mr Grissell, in very low notes, offered his apology. It was brief and not very artistic, but one passage of it was excessively ingenious, and the gravity of the incensed assembly was almost upset by Mr Grissell's assurance that he would have submitted himself at the opening of the session had he not happened to read in the Times a paragraph which made 'his friends think the House 'would not wish public business to be impeded by so insignificant and humble an individual' as himself. The inference was that what had been mistaken for defiance was merely an anxious desire on Mr Grissell's part to avoid causing anything like 'obstruction;' but, without troubling to inquire whether or not this was a little joke, the House directed the prisoner to withdraw, and he retired backwards to the lobby, bowing reverently. Thereupon the mace was restored to the table, and the House proceeded to exercise its judicial functions.

The leader of the House warned by his false step on the previous night was very cautious, abstained from anything in the nature of an oration, and briefly moved that Mr. Grissell should be committed to Newgate.

This proposal was received on all hands as satisfactory, and Mr. Forster seconded it reluctantly, regretting that in the circumstances of the case it was impossible to be more lenient. He also explained that the Chancellor of the Exchequer had taken counsel with him before making the original resolution, which the House had refused to accept.

The motion for an indefinite committal was promptly carried, and without any more ado Mr. Grissell was taken to his old quarters in the Old Bailey, with a prospect of becoming better acquainted with Her Majesty's goal of Newgate than he could have been during his few hours' sojourn there prior to the prorogation.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The Mercedes Races on Monday and Tuesday were the most successful and enjoyable yet held there. We give particulars in another column. There was a vigorous circulation of paper dollars in the Ring, especially after the Strangers' Race on the second day. This race also gave rise to a dispute as to a quotation, which reminds us of a similar difference of opinion between the great Curran and the presiding Judge on a Western circuit, as related by Harry Lorrequer. A letter on this subject will be found in another column.

Mr. E. W. White, the distinguished English naturalist, leaves to-day for Rioja for a two months' inspection of the 'fauna' of that province. We trust he will favour us with a few of those masterly and graphic letters which he so well knows how to pen when Nature is his theme.

We feel pleasure in welcoming home another eminent traveller and writer, Mr. Miguel Cané, who has just returned from an extended tour on the West Coast. All who have read his eloquent letters during his journey will hope for more on the same subject.

The retirement of Mr. Terrero from the Municipality is announced. Coming on the heels of the Lord Mayor's resignation, it suggests that politics possibly have something to do with the retirement of so useful a member of the Corporation as Mr. Terrero. The number of sins these eternal politics have to answer for in this country would have mad, Uncle Toby weep like a waterspout, and is enough to force the recording angel to drop more than one tear.

Politics are getting less sour and savage every day. It is a sheer impossibility to catch all the flying rumours of the hour. The interview between Governor Tejedor and General Sarmiento on Tuesday is commented on, but appears to have led to nothing as yet. The march of Santa Fe troops to the Arroyo del Medio has thrown more fat into the fire. They say up there that it is simply to protect the Ramallo estancieros against camp marauders; but down here the step is looked on with different eyes, and as likely to lead to the calling out of the National Guards. The political ills we have at the present moment are really formidable enough to make the stoutest patriot 'fly to those he knows not of;' yet there are many who stick like leeches to the belief that there won't be a shot fired, and that all will end well.

Governor Tejedor is to have another gold medal, the subscription for purchasing which now amounts to 8,000 m/c.

There will be an auction at the State Pawn Office on the 15th, 16th and 17th inst. All kinds of seedy odds and ends are to be picked up at these sales for half nothing.

The latest discovery in Patagonia is a new lake, the finder being Lieut. Moyano of the National Navy, who is gradually coming into note as an explorer. The new 'lago' is at the source of the Santa Cruz River, and is remarkable as being in a region where Eolus has a branch cave, and it blows there from morning till night and night till morning with force enough to tear the crape off a widower's hat, and his hat and hair after it. The Northern extremity of this new lake is in 40° 56' South Latitude.

The Oeste of Mercedes announces that one of the political parties there has decided to vote with bullets instead of tickets on Sunday next. There is, unfortunately, nothing very new in this.

The Memoirs of General Dan. O'Leary, Aide-de-Camp to the Liberator, Bolivar, are now being published by the Government of Venezuela. There will be 3,000 copies.

Viva! Good news for the estancieros. The Directors of the Western Railway have called for bids for the construction of new wool deposits at the Plaza Once. We rather calculate that the Standard had a hand in this step in the right direction.

Emile Zola's highly (too highly) spiced novel Nana is being translated into Spanish. It is to be feared that there will be too many subscribers for it.

Many people went off on Tuesday to have a peep at the splendid new steamer Cosmos, while she remained in port. We have already described this beautiful vessel. There is nothing to equal her on the river.

The total strength of the Argentine army at present is as follows:—

Infantry	3557
Cavalry	3916
Artillery	865
Indians	569
Total	8907

The Montevidean sporting world were all agog a few days ago about a race which was to take place at Maroñas between an Englishman and one of the best horses in the country, the biped having 50 yards start. We have not heard how it ended.

The employees of the Municipality have subscribed $5000 m/c to present the ex-Lord Mayor, Mr Guerrico, with a handsome album as a token of their esteem.

A witty colleague describes the Tiro Nacional as 'a sword, the blade of which is Mitrista and the handle Tejedorista, but it cannot cut without the blade.' Not so very bad.

The Poor Law returns at home show a strange fact. In England there is a pauper for every 33 inhabitants, in Scotland for every 44, and in Ireland for every 68. The present famine will, of course, alter these figures.

As usual, there is very little news worth reading in the Chilian papers to hand. There is a strong suspicion that things are not going on as well as expected with the expedition to Ilo and Moquegua, and the leading papers of Valparaiso and Santiago give the Commander-in-Chief the same advice which our friend Mr. Pettibone, in 'A Kiss in the Dark,' gave Mr. Falcon, in reference to his manner of flirting, viz., 'Throw a little more vigour into it, man.' From whichever side the vigour is to come in this miserable Ten Cents War, it would be well that it should come at once and put an end to the struggle.

The proprietors of the Florida Gardens are about to present an album to Maestro Bassi, their talented Director of the orchestra. The public have also the privilege of subscribing, and a list is now open at the Gardens.

The banquet given to ex-President Latorre last week by Councillor Netto, the Brazilian Minister at Montevideo, was the most splendid thing of the kind ever seen there. President Vidal and his Ministers, the Corps Diplomatique and the most prominent citizens of Montevideo were present. The toasts were numerous and cordial and showed the most friendly feeling between Banda Oriental and Brazil, the Emperor Dom Pedro's health, proposed by Colonel Latorre, being received with especial warmth. After the banquet there was a magnificent ball at which Montevidean High Life was full represented. The supper was of the most luxurious kind.

The camp is going to the dogs for want of a proper police force. From Junin, Lincoln, Ensenada, Rojas, in fact from all quarters daily accounts of robbery and outrage come to hand, but no reform can be hoped for: everything, even life and property, must give way to the elections. The latest news from Junin is that 15 veterans of the Provincial Guard are busily engaged in drilling a new regiment of policemen. Where or when will all this end?

We perceive that the Journal des Debats of Paris has got hold of the article on Pianos which we published nearly a year ago, and which the Times copied when it appeared. Our city colleagues are now hashing it up again as fresh news from France. It would have been shorter for our colleagues to have copied it from our columns when it appeared first. In Dublin, people who fancy that the R. Plate is within easy pic-nic distance of New Orleans, refuse to believe that we have anything superior to an accordion or tin whistle in the musical way, in this benighted portion of the globe.

Our native colleagues are at poor Count Telfener again. His 'apoderado' here lately applied for some rails which are his property, and this very reasonable demand is looked on as 'una audacia chocante.' We really cannot see it, but then we are, we hope, not 'off our heads' about a contractor making a few thousand pounds on a railway. This ineradicable delusion about the Count's 'gigantic fortune', made from the Tucuman Railway, is to us quite inexplicable, except on political grounds.

Our colleague La Paz is going to enlarge its size. This looks well for Dr. Irigoyen's chance on Sunday next.

The first batch of Chinamen (35) ever seen in Brazil arrived there last month from Cuba, and it is now purely a question of time till the empire shall be over-run by them. We don't appreciate the proximity of these Celestial visitors, and we hope their knowledge of geography does not extend to the River Plate. The Pigtails have many good qualities as hewers of wood and drawers of water, but their morals and domestic habits are by no means the thing, and quite outweigh their advantage as very cheap labourers. Our distinguished relative Uncle Sam has had a long trial of them in California and now appears inclined to kick them out.

While a cavalry regiment was exercising at the Chacarita on Monday a trooper's carbine went off by accident and wounded a labouring man, who was looking on, in the foot.

MUTUAL IMPROVEMENT.

To the Editor of the Standard,

Dear Sir,

The other day in the camp, I happened to see in a number of your colleague, the Herald, a letter signed 'Aesthetic,' demanding the origin of a certain quotation. These mutual improvement questions ought, I think, to be more cultivated than they are, and I am astonished that the Standard should not have been the first to warm up the oven. Aesthetic has already been answered, and though leaving him to his own reflections, I trust that he has not laid down his lance for aye. My object in addressing you is to state that at the Mercedes Races, I had occasion to censure a 'friend' who had given me second choice on a certain race, and, on my handing him the small amount that I had lost, I remarked: 'How strange that so ill-looking a brute as the horse you selected should have carried off the race.' Smiling he replied: 'Cernere rummus erat, quamquam diabolicus ire.' I did not exactly understand him, but he wrote me out the quotation as above. Can you tell me whence it comes? Some one suggested that it was from Twaugleton's famous Latin ode to the stars, but of this I have not a copy. Can you assist me?

Yours,

Bubulcus.

[Ed. Note.—The line is from the Greek, and will be found in the play of the Clouds, by Aristophanes.]

The Bolsa opened this morning under the impress of the Nacion article. Never before have we seen a newspaper article so wonderfully affect the market. Yesterday gold was up to 31 for cash, and sold at that rate; yet this morning, owing to the more peaceful turn of politics, sellers were offering at 30.90 before the brokers had their breakfast. The market ruled yesterday as upwards as to-day it ruled downward, and many parties who bought gold yesterday and the day before found it hard enough to get quit of it to-day without a loss, even without any change in politics. We noted that the moment the pats ran up close to 31, some very new and heavy sellers appeared in the market, but the change in politics tumbled everything, and when Dr Quintana entered the train at Flores this morning everyone saluted him as the rising man.

Gold opened at 30.90, and closed at 30.75, cash sales 1:3,990, which was a heavy business enough, but the sales for the end of the month astonished everyone and showed the great pressure of the squeeze to get rid of the gold in time; they amounted to 1,187,500, opening at 30.90, and closing at 30.70. For May a heavy business was also done, 291,000, opening at 30.85 and closing at 30.75, and for June same price. Gold was offered for all the year at 30.60, but no buyers.

Another batch of most favorable wool telegrams has come, and the result was seen in the market this morning, a leading French buyer paying 160 m/c for Magdalena wool, about the highest price ever paid in this market for Magdalena wool. In the North Market 146 paid for regular wool and 156 and 160 m/c for inferior, lambs wool none offering.

Baltar and Quesada's place to-day reminded one of the fair at Balinasloe, such was the crowd, and the splendid quality of the animals offering prices lower down.

Exchange the same as yesterday, one large transaction done at 5.23. The River Plate Bank draws at 49½, and bills passed in market at 49¾ and 5.24 to 25.

Some grasería gold sold on 'Change to-day for May at 30.75.

Nat. Bank Shares rather firmer to-day and done for end of month at 58, buyers for that date.

The La France with 1200 immigrants entered Montevideo to-day direct from Mediterranean. So long as we have such arrivals to chronicle, we can laugh at the political errors that bother the country.

This morning at 11 o'clock a.m. President Avellaneda walked into Governor Tejedor's house and remained closeted with H.E. until 1 o'clock. Immense importance was attached to the interview. Some parties said that on the Governor's table lay the decree calling out the Nat. Guards, and now torn up.

The last telegram from the U. States gives dry hides 23½ kips, and exchange on London 4.80½, which is a sharp drop.

Advices from Chile report exchange in Valparaiso down to 32½d, which shows another severe fall, and in Lima 8½-¾ per Sol.

Mr M Rom and many others left to-day with Minister Plaza for the Interior, to inaugurate the San Luis Railway.

Freights present no change; the rates are 20s for Antwerp, and 20 fos. for Havre and 10 per cent.

The French packet Oronoque sails to-morrow and exchange for her mail closed a shade firmer. Some of the largest houses offered to draw, but there are few takers. Mr Durand reports the wool arrivals to date as 5,600,000 arrobas, sales 5,550,000 ar. against arrivals 4,820,000 ar., sales 4,220,000 ar., and 600,000 ar. stock same time last year; and our shipments show 175,585 bales shipped to 1st inst. against 153,877 bales same time last year.

Our special Boca reporter gives the following:—

"The Engl. barque Sarah Ann consigned to Messrs Spinetto & Son, with cargo of lumber, took the ground opposite Barraca de Peña, and has to be lightened. Having a heavy deck load, and her heeling over on account of low tide, the strain on the vessel is very great. I am sorry to see that the fine German barque Fidelio is still lying idle. The Captain prefers a cargo for the U. States. The vessel carries 500 tons (dead weight).

"To-morrow (Thursday) the Leguizamon, in combination with the Campana Railway, begins running between Campana, Zarate and Baradero. Her agents are Soraire & Maraspin Calle Victoria 34. Train leaves at 2.15 p.m."

The new Municipality, it appears, is opposed to allowing the Exhibition Committee to take possession of the Plazas until after the July feasts, which will be an inconvenient delay for the Exhibition; and an appeal has been made to the Governor of the Province about the matter, as invitations have been sent round not only to the different republics of South America but also to the European nations. The premeditated refusal of the Municipality may prove a most serious inconvenience, and it is to be hoped that at least the old Plaza 25 de Mayo will be handed over immediately, so that the works may be begun.

The Central Station to-day was twice crowded; first by the friends of Mr Dryadale, who mustered unusually strong and filled to its utmost the special train that left for the Boca; and secondly by Minister Plaza and his friends who left for Campana to take the steamer Pingo for Rosario and proceed thence by the Central Argentine Railway and Rio Cuarto Railway to Mercedes. At Fraile Muerto there is a fine restaurant, and the Minister and his friends will be entertained at a banquet there. At Mercedes, where the inaugural ceremonies take place, there will be a grand banquet, 150 covers; and we have asked our special correspondent in Rosario to attend on our behalf, and send us a full report of the function.

Mr S Casales informs us that the inauguration of the railway to Giles was really no inauguration at all, and, therefore, the sheepfarmers of that district need not be surprised that the engine-driver and guard could find nothing at the new station wherewith to wet their lips, as it was not intended by the Board of Directors that there should be any refreshments or the least demonstration on the occasion. The grand inauguration will take place on the first of May, when the line will be opened to San Antonio de Areco, a thriving country town over 200 years old. The Asumenaga Station is a league and a half from the town of Giles, and in front of Mr Cunningham's estancia house, and about half a league from Mr Patrick Wheeler's estancia; and we feel quite certain that had either Mr Cunningham or Mr Wheeler received notice of the arrival of the inaugural train, they would have at their own cost supplied a spread that would have been worthy of the Governor and his Ministers.

The fees for realisation of bankrupt estates are not the only ones which will bear reduction. Average adjusters' charges are very high. The average apportionment of the Royal Mail steamer Trent costs $5,700 fuertes, the whole amount to recover being as many pounds sterling, and we believe legally more than double this amount could have been charged.

There is great stir in the 11 de Setiembre at the proposed new changes to be made by the Western Railway. The surveyors are out on the line marking out for another track. The Parque Station, they say, is to be shut up, the terminus is to be in the Plaza Once, and two new deposits, built on little scraps of ground not fit for a decent caballeriza, are to be erected. The accommodation no doubt will be better next season than last, but these miserable new deposits about to be constructed are utterly unworthy of so splendid an enterprise as the Western Railway. The Board of Directors ought to be supplied with free tickets by the Royal Mail, or Lamport and Holt's Line and sent 'en masse' over to Crewe, or even the King's Bridge Station, at Dublin, to study what railway deposits are and should be. The money to be spent in the new deposits now about to be erected, will not be thrown away, inasmuch as every shed put up in that plaza will be required to meet the rapidly growing industry of the north camps of Buenos Aires. But the whole affair is a mere makeshift. We want at least 25,000 square varas covered in by the Western Railway, and made into depots to hold the produce of the country during the busy season; and whether it be this year or next, the want has to be met. Next season, spite of all the wondrous efforts of the Directors, we shall have the same squeeze, the same disgraceful destruction of piles of fleeces for the want of room to stand or to walk, and the buyers from Europe will have fresh opportunity to compliment the Directors on the traffic of their line being too great for their means, their brains, or their comprehension.

Messrs Gandolfi & Moss report as follows in their circular for the mail:—

"During the fortnight imports and exports have both been dull. The stock of goods is low, consumption being slow and dealers well supplied; the demand for the country and the rivers is trifling; nevertheless there has been a slight advance in some articles. The slight movement in wool was caused by the fact that almost all the clip has been sold; the few lots in deposit are defective. Prices are highly favourable to producers, especially for wools and sheepskins. Political matters are daily getting worse, as the people of Buenos Aires seem firmly resolved to protest, arms in hand, against having a new President forced on them when the people are not left free to vote for themselves. Both sides are preparing to fight, and people are getting decidedly nervous, as neither side will give way. Corrientes is also preparing for battle. As for B. Aires, its Provincial Bank will once more prove its salvation, as, in case of this province seceding from the Confederation, the National Government would be left without any resources for even its ordinary wants, much less for a civil war. All this has driven up the premium on gold, as capitalists prefer to hold it in case of emergency, and merchants want to make their exchanges safe, and the demand comes from all quarters while the supply is short and but few bills of exchange offering. The Bank selling paper exchange at 40d (equal to 49d gold) will somewhat neutralise the upward tendency. Discounts are easier at 7¼-8 paper, and 6½-7 gold."

The following is the Provincial Bank balance-sheet for the month March 1880:—
